

PHD APPOINTMENTS AT THE IMPRS FOR ASTRONOMY & ASTROPHYSICS BONN, COLOGNE

MAX-PLANCK-GESELLSCHAFT

The International Max Planck Research School (IMPRS) for Astronomy & Astrophysics is a joint doctoral program between the Max Planck Institute for Radioastronomy (Bonn) and the Universities of Bonn and Cologne.

- You have talent and ambition for an outstanding research career?
- You have a background in Astrophysics?
- You are about to finish a master's (or equivalent) thesis and want to obtain a PhD at one of the most vibrant Astronomy centers in Europe?

Then visit <http://imprs.mpifr.de> and submit your application before November 15th 2017!

Program Details:

- 3 year appointments
- Gross remuneration starting at ~23000€/a + attractive benefits; no tuition fees
- A network of 60 PhD students from 26 countries
- Mentorship from world class faculty at MPIfR, U of Bonn and U of Cologne
- Career enhancement workshops, advanced lecture courses
- Research on hot topics in observational and theoretical astrophysics
- Access to world leading observing facilities at a variety of wavelengths
- Funding for travel and research
- School language is English

IMPRS
astronomy &
astrophysics
Bonn and Cologne

Max-Planck-Institut
für
Radioastronomie

Argelander-
Institut
für Astronomie